

I See You by Claire Mackintosh

A selected book by Richard and Judy and voted a reader's winner in 2015. So a good reason to be chosen for our book club members. A bit of a risk as many do not read psychological thrillers! However this was a real hit.

I See You is a twisty thriller keeping the reader guessing and at times gripping the edge of their seat. Follow the twists and turns. You have to get to the end!! It's a page turner and it sucks you in and gets you looking over your shoulder!

Zoe is predictable in her journey to and from work on the underground, same route to the station, same train, same place in the carriage... On one commute home she sees her own face staring back at her in the local gazette. A grainy picture with a phone number and listing for a website called findtheone.com. Each day other women appear in the same ad. But then, some become victims of increasingly violent crimes. Could she be the next target? With the help of a police officer she delves deeper and uncovers the ad's twisted purpose and in doing so her journey of terror increases. Zoe is sure someone close to her has set her up as the next target. Who can she trust? Who is watching her? When will they make their move?
